WORMSER'S ANSWER TO OLLIE

Flat Denial of Her Story of Meeting in a Bleeping-Car.

Story of the Young Woman's Early Life in Boston.

Miss or Mrs. Ollie Kent Turner or Worm ser's affidavit in her suit for divorce against Maurice S. Wormser, the banker, who the claims to be, published in THE EVENING Would of Pesterday, has drawn forth a cir-cumstantial denial from Mr. Wormser.

Mr. Wormser natly denies the allegations ment that he met her at Mauo Marshall's, 145 to her by N. Dilleaberg. Mr. Dilleaberg aweers that Mr. Worms met "Ollie" Turner at Maud Marshall's, and uring the same evening made arrangements to have her live with him.

Mary Stecom swears that "Ollie" was an inmate of her house, 14 West Twenty-fourth street, in the Summer of 1888. Henrietta flarris tells the same story. Prancis Harris says that the woman boarded at his house, 689 Sixth avenue, in the Pall of 1888, and that he had to tell her to leave on account of her habits.

and Oguenasury, when the second of the secon ployed to take the plaintiff's trunks from Mrs. Marshall's house to the Park avenue flat. Rachel Edelman, a seamstress, save Marshall's house and knew her as Agnes Turner. Mordeoni S. Mauffman says the plaintiff told him that she met Mr. Wormser at a house of bad repute. John Homsen, a grocer's clerk, awears that the plaintiff told him that she would make Mr. Wormser live with her or pay her $50,-000. Other witnesses blacken her reputa-

A possible witness in the ease, a young man who claims to have been a schoolmate, tells some interesting stories of "Oille's" early life and antecedents.

Iler name, it seems, is really Agnes, and she was born of parents whose humble home was not in accordance with the young woman's luxurious tastes. Determined to have some of the cream of life she went to Boston, and after studying for some months, became a typewriter in an office.

About this time she met several business and club men of wealth, and sported jeweiry far beyond the reach of her shender salary. Later she became a shining light in a select little corrie of young women popular with the "fast set" in Harvard College.

Tiring of Boston, she came to New York, and the young man says she told him she met Wormser at a French bail. Previous to her acquaintance with Wormser she was a frequent visitor at certain resorts in the Tenderiolin Preciact, but when she became "Mrs. Wormser" was more circumspect.

Justice Patterson, of the Supreme Court, to whom the affidavits were handed on "Oille's" motion for alimony pending trial of her case, will not decide the motion for some days.

Driver Henry Powers, of Broadway and Oreally in 1022 Lexington avenue, at Broadway and Great Jones street, was remanded this morn-ing in Jeferson Market Police Court for the Coroner.

Powers refused to say anything about the accident. He looked worried and tired, and had evidently passed a bad night. His examination will be held this atternoon.
